

O autorach

Montserrat Fons-Esteve, Doctor of Philosophy and Education Sciences, is Full Professor at the University of Barcelona, Spain. She is a research member of PLURAL. She is involved in various research projects related to teacher beliefs, multilingualism, initial literacy as well as teacher education. Currently, she is the PI in a research project that uses visual narratives to obtain insights into how pre-service teachers learn classroom discourse.

e-mail: mfons@ub.edu

Krzysztof Kwiatkowski, MA, is currently a teacher at the Department of English Studies, Faculty of Pedagogy and Fine Arts, Adam Mickiewicz University, Kalisz. He earned his Master's Degree in February 2011 and is now a PhD student with interests in learning strategies, vocabulary learning strategies, and teaching and learning vocabulary.

e-mail: kwiatkowskikrzysztof@interia.pl

Agata Lewandowska, PhD, is a senior lecturer at the Institute of Romance Languages, Adam Mickiewicz University, Poznań, Poland, where she teaches upper-intermediate and advanced courses in English and in information technology. Until 2011 she worked as an EFL lecturer at the university's Teacher Training College. She defended her PhD thesis on the effectiveness of DDL techniques at the Faculty of English in 2013.

e-mail: alewan@amu.edu.pl

Edyta Olejarczuk, MA graduated from the Faculty of English, Adam Mickiewicz University Poznań, Poland as well as Postgraduate Studies in Specialized Translation at the same university. She is a member of the Modern Language Association of Poland and a coordinator of the examination section in the Centre of Languages and Communication at Poznań University of Technology. Her responsibilities involve teaching English for Specific Purposes (ESP), conducting and supervising state and international examinations as well as designing and conducting blended learning courses in ESP, Business English and soft skills. She has also delivered guest lectures at the Universitat Politècnica de València, Spain in 2012, 2013, and 2013.

e-mail: edytaolejarczuk@gmail.com

Mireia Pérez-Peitz is a PhD student at the University of Barcelona where she has a scholarship. She graduated in politics from the University Pompeu Fabra and in teacher education from the University of Barcelona. She is a research member of PLURAL. Her areas of interest are teacher beliefs, teacher education, initial literacy, learning in multilingualism contexts and visual narratives.

e-mail: mireia.perez@ub.edu

Katarzyna Stachowiak is a Ph.D. student at the Faculty of English, Adam Mickiewicz University, Poznań, Poland. Her research interests revolve around psycholinguistics, specifically attention and working memory in linguistic and multimodal processing. She focuses on process research in translation and interpreting, conducting studies by means of behavioural methods, including observation, reaction times measurement and eye tracking. Since she teaches translation and coleads the Faculty's Translation Reading Group, she is particularly interested in extralinguistic skills in translators and interpreters, and the way they can be developed in trainees.

e-mail: kstachowiak@wa.amu.edu.pl

Bartosz Wolski received his doctoral degree in applied linguistics from Adam Mickiewicz University in Poznań. Currently, he is a lecturer at the Institute of Modern Languages of State University of Applied Sciences in Konin, Poland. His research interests include American Studies, methodology of American Studies teaching, the use of ICT in education, and constructivist approaches to teaching and learning.

e-mail: bartwol@gmail.com