

Notes on Contributors

Olga L. Antineskul is Associate Professor in the Department of Foreign Languages, National Research University, Higher School of Economics, Perm, Russia. Her research interests are text analysis from a gender perspective, psychological aspects of foreign language learning and teaching, with reference to ESP and EAP, discourse analysis, intercultural communication.

ORCID ID: <https://orcid.org/0000-0002-3700-8394>

Contact details: Department of Foreign Languages, National Research University, Higher School of Economics, Studencheskaya, 38, Perm 614070, Russia (olga.antineskul@hotmail.com)

Simon Cooke is Associate Professor in the Center for General Education at the Tohoku Institute of Technology in Sendai, Japan. His fields of research include motivational dynamics in second language acquisition, autonomous learning, and computer assisted language learning (CALL).

ORCID ID: <https://orcid.org/0000-0001-5482-4142>

Contact details: Centre for General Education, Tohoku Institute of Technology, 35-1 Yagiyama, Kasumicho, Taihakuku, Sendai, Miyagi, 982-8577, Japan (cookesimon@tohtech.ac.jp)

Hilal Ergül is Assistant Professor of applied linguistics and TESOL at the University of Northern Iowa. She has taught foreign/second language classes to different age groups both in Europe and the United States. She has also taught applied linguistics classes in undergraduate and graduate teacher training programs in the United States. Her research mainly revolves around second language acquisition, specifically language teachers' error correction practices and the effectiveness of them for learners. She is also interested in pragmatics, focusing mainly on politeness and humor. She has recently been working on a collaborative project that will help improve multimodal linguistic analyses involving smiles.

ORCID ID: <https://orcid.org/0000-0001-5652-2420>

Contact details: Department of Languages and Literatures, University of Northern Iowa, 2015 Bartlett Hall, Cedar Falls, IA 50614-0502 (hilal.ergul@uni.edu)

Elena V. Kostareva is Associate Professor in the Department of Foreign Languages, National Research University, Higher School of Economics, Perm, Russia. Her research interests are discourse analysis with emphasis on EFL and ELT situations and cultural issues, English for specific purposes, and professional communication.

ORCID ID: <https://orcid.org/0000-0002-3707-4789>

Contact details: Department of Foreign Languages, National Research University, Higher School of Economics, Studencheskaya, 38, Perm 614070, Russia (ekostareva@hse.ru)

Lidia Lankosz, MA is a graduate of the University of Bielsko-Biala, Poland and the Jagiellonian University, Cracow, Poland. She has been a passionate teacher of all levels and age groups since 2008. As a teacher of Italian and English, she is a strong advocate of CLIL and the communicative approach. Her research interests include creative involvement in foreign language learning and teaching and preschool, early-school and adult bilingualism. She also works as a freelance interpreter and translator of Polish, English and Italian.

ORCID ID: <http://orcid.org/0000-0002-8312-9293>

Contact details: Adam Asnyk 2nd Grammar School in Bielsko-Biala, Jutrzenki 13, 43-300 Bielsko-Biala, Poland (lidiabaran@wp.pl)

Yoichi Meguro is a first year PhD student at Sophia University, Japan and a part-time lecturer in the Faculty of International Studies at Bunkyo University, Japan. He received an MA degree in literature from Aoyama Gakuin University in Tokyo, Japan. His research interests are individual differences, task complexity, and focus on form.

ORCID ID: <https://orcid.org/0000-0001-6172-7519>

Contact details: Sophia University, 7-1 Kioi-cho, Chiyoda-ku, Tokyo, 102-8554, Japan (y-meguro-4x7@eagle.sophia.ac.jp)

Tatiana M. Permyakova is Professor in the Department of Foreign Languages, National Research University, Higher School of Economics, Perm, Russia. Her research interests are intercultural communication theories, discourse analysis with emphasis on EFL and ELT situations, English for specific purposes, professional and business communication.

ORCID ID: <https://orcid.org/0000-0003-4960-5038>

Contact details: Department of Foreign Languages, National Research University, Higher School of Economics, Studencheskaya, 38, Perm 614070, Russia (perm1@hotmail.com)

Krzysztof Polok, PhD, is University Professor at the Institute of Neolinguistics, University of Bielsko-Biala, Poland. He has published on FL teaching and learning, inclusion of creative processes in the classroom FL lesson design, forms of FL creativity-focused teaching to preschool and early school students, FL teachers' educational philosophy, the processes of FL (English) acculturation, acquisition and learning in school and out-of-school settings as well as the processes of language change and their internal/external influence on language teaching and learning. He has participated in various research groups and EU-funded research projects. He has published twelve books on various aspects of introducing the English language to non-native students. He is the author of a three-volume book titled English in Sports.

ORCID ID: <http://orcid.org/0000-0002-0283-9665>

Contact details: Institute of Neolinguistics, University of Bielsko-Biala, Willowa 2, 43-300 Bielsko-Biała, Poland (sworntran@interia.pl)

Anton S. Vlasov is an MA student in the Faculty of Economics at the University of Munich, Germany. His research objectives lie within the intellectual capital framework which includes human resources, organization structure and communication with external environment. He applies statistical models to interdisciplinary research.

ORCID ID: <https://orcid.org/0000-0003-0534-3208>

Contact details: Faculty of Economics, University of Munich, Germany, Schackstraße 4/IV, Munich, Germany (vlasov.anton@ya.ru)